Personal experiences prove:

Cellular nutrients effective in controlling cancer!

Is cancer an unavoidable disease, which inevitably occurs as people grow older? Clearly, the answer is "no". It has been proven that micronutrients are able to naturally block the spreading of cancer cells. The ground-breaking book "Victory over Cancer" has documented the scientific basis towards the prevention and control of this widespread disease. Now there is proof in the form of numerous well-documented progress reports by cancer patients.

The fact that micronutrients are effective and help in controlling the decisive stages of cancer cell migration is shown by the personal progress reports we continuously receive from cancer patients. To illustrate the impressive number of positive experiences with cellular nutrients people have had in controlling cancer, we have published some of these reports in the new book "The Proof – Successes with cellular nutrients confirm vitamin research findings". For instance, a patient who suffered from breast cancer reports the following:

"Good friends then told me about cellular nutrients, and I started carefully studying books and brochures about it. All I read struck me as incredible – that entirely natural medical help was indeed available. Since March 2001 I have been taking cellular nutrients every day. After just four weeks I found that I was recovering quickly from chemotherapy, and my immune system has stabilised. For me it was like a miracle to take something, at last, that was effective but had NO SIDE EFFECTS. It is not just that I am feeling very well, but the lab findings also give me a clean bill of health. I have conquered the cancer – and eleven years after the devastating diagnosis there are no longer any signs of it."

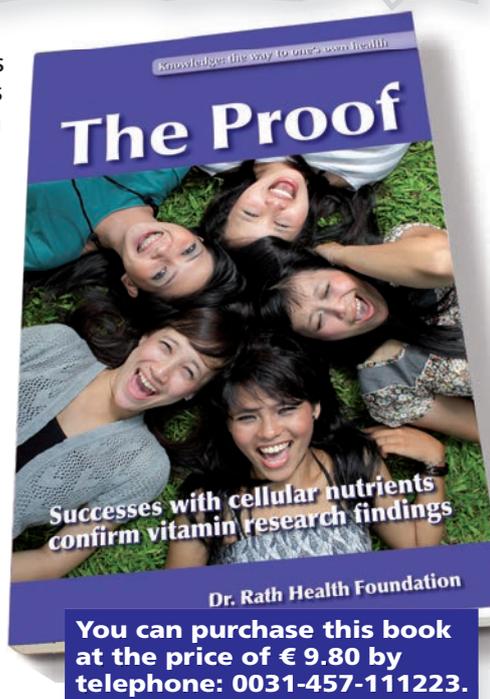

Prostate cancer is one of the most common types of cancer in men. In the case of this disease it may also be advisable to read the book "The Proof". The following health report is an example of the many positive experiences prostate cancer patients have had from using cellular nutrients:

"Today I can truly say that I am pain-free: I no longer need painkillers and feel generally lively and well. The check-ups are no longer worrying, and I enjoy my life as a pensioner. PSA levels are measured every six months, and they have fallen from 707 to 268, and then further to 44. The last reading showed a level of 19. A bone radio-imaging test will be done again in the near future, but I am not in the least worried about it: in fact I look forward to the results."

Another frequent type of cancer is leukaemia. A common characteristic of this disease is that millions of white blood cells (leukocytes) invade organs such as the liver and the spleen from the blood stream, where they produce immense amounts of collagen digesting enzymes, which literally digest these organs from within, thereby causing organ failure. A leukaemia patient reports:

"My blood levels (leucocytes and lymphocytes) stayed quite stable; and so far – and ten years have passed now – I have had no need of chemotherapy, and am very pleased and hopeful in consequence. I am convinced that cellular nutrients have helped me in recent years and I continue to have faith in their health-promoting effect."

Personal experiences with cellular nutrients such as these confirm the findings of numerous scientific studies published on the breakthroughs in natural cancer treatment by the Dr. Rath Research Institute. Meanwhile, major clinical studies on cellular nutrients in relation to cancer are now being carried out at more than a hundred other research centres and university clinics worldwide. It is foreseeable that, within a few years, cancer will change from being a "death sentence" to a treatable – and above all avoidable – disease.
